Declaration for Submitted Manuscripts

All authors have to read this declaration and confirm it online in the Editorial Manager system at submission.

The authors of the publication declare:

- 1 The principles of good scientific practice, according to current regulations stipulated in the editorial guidelines of the German Journal of Sports Medicine, have been adhered to when elaborating the data and knowledge of the evaluation and the transcript. The current version of the authors' guidelines and the editorial policies of the German Journal of Sports Medicine published in the Internet, are accepted by all authors without reservation.
- 2 All authors have read the manuscript completely, vouch for the correctness and completeness of the content for all parts of the manuscript, and assume unlimited responsibility. The published results have been raised correctly and completely. No dishonest methods have been used and no plagiarism.
- 3 The general ethical principles of medical contact with patients and the right of information and self-determination of patients and experimental subjects have been adhered to (Declaration of Helsinki) as well as the principles for the ethical treatment of laboratory animals.
- 4 The Anti-Doping guidelines of the National Anti-Doping Agency (NADA), the World-Anti-Doping-Agency (WADA) as well as of the International Olympic Committee and the general ethical principles of physicians, as described in the "Olympic Movement Medical Code", have been fully adhered to without any restrictions.
- 5 The manuscript or essential parts of it have not been published or submitted for publication in German language. Publications or submissions of the manuscript or essential parts of it in international publications are completely added or cited. Copyright of the manuscript or parts of it does not exist. The author or the holder of the copyright has obtained licenses for publication.
- 6 In case of acceptance for publication all rights of publication of the manuscript will be transferred to the German Journal of Sports Medicine. This also includes all rights on the printed as well as electronic version published.
- 7 For original submissions exceeding a limit of four printing pages and general submissions exceeding a limit of five printing pages a printing fee of 150,- € per additional page will be charged.

- 8 All financial interests and affairs like honorariums, patents or support of a study by a company have been stated clearly in the manuscript and announced to the editorial board.
- 9 In case of proven irregularities against the policies of the German Journal of Sports Medicine and the authors' declaration, all authors agree that already published data can fully or partly be withdrawn, excluding legal proceedings. If necessary compensation claims against the author(s) can be made.
